FOREWORD

This yearbook is the record of a period no happier for college people than for people anywhere. MORTARBOARD, essentially the chronicle of moments that happened between the news, those moments which constitute the flavor and glamor of college life for so many undergraduates, has been challenged as an unnecessary luxury in the face of the demands of institutions whose fundamental purpose is something much more urgent and tangible than the preservation of flavor. ✦ ✦ Our only answer is this, our appearance. If in times as troubled and serious as these, someone can find the inspiration and energy needed to perpetuate the amenities of college life, we feel that the end justifies the work. If those amenities are for all time recreated in our MORTARBOARD, our one marginal note is a wish for the future. ✦ ✦ That wish takes form around the present classes of Barnard. May every member of every class, say we, find in this document much that is pleasant, and may she find, in what we trust will be a more fortunate year, the opportunity to remember and enjoy the souvenirs we have gathered here.

NEW YORK CITY SKYLINE

DEDICATION

To the base, noble, ugly, beautiful city of whose great life our little lives at Barnard have been a part; classroom of human nature, library of the ways of the world, laboratory of the modern experiment; mighty complex of forces which have moulded us, and which we in turn must mould as best we can; to the city of New York, Alma Mater of our Alma Mater, we dedicate this volume.

IN MEMORIAM

Charlotte Sanford Baker

Trustee, December 10, 1909, to December 23, 1932

Barnard lost one of its most valued friends by the death of Miss Baker on December 23, 1932. She had long been an interested and devoted trustee, concerned particularly with the Committee on Buildings and Grounds, of which she was often chairman. Especially during the years when Barnard Hall was being planned and erected, she rendered excellent service to the college.

Miss Baker was for many years associate principal of the Spence School of New York, and after Miss Spence's death, principal. She guided the school through its reorganization under a Board of Trustees. She was also active in many other lines of public service.

Her kind and generous heart, her keen intelligence, her frankness, courage and sincerity, made her a good friend and a good citizen.

Student Government at Barnard College is carried on through the Undergraduate Association, of which every student is a member. This self-governing body is organized under the Student Council and the Representative Assembly; the first, the executive body, consisting of eleven undergraduate officers; the second, the legislative body, consisting of Student Council, nine members from the college at large, eleven members from the four classes, the editors of chartered publications, the presidents of chartered clubs, and the chairmen of standing committees. Student Council has, in addition to its executive function, the important functions of co-ordination of the widely varied student activities, of furthering co-operation between the students and both the faculty and alumnae, and of facilitating instructive relations with outside colleges and affairs through conference delegations.

The Honor System was originally adopted by the Undergraduate Association at the suggestion of the students themselves. It has become a tradition of Barnard student government. The Honor Code states the standard of honor expected: absolute sincerity in all phases of college work; all students are asked to sign the Code to indicate understanding of the system; violations are dealt with by the Honor Board, composed of a chairman and two members from each class, one elected and the other appointed by the chairman. The success of the Honor System depends on the loyalty of the entire student body.

"You live in the dormitory—which one, Hooks or Brewitt? Er—oh yes, Hewitt! But do you like living right in the city?"

Thus are we dormitory dwellers confronted; but from the first "Hi! Jane, when did you get in?" to the last "Don't forget to write to me this summer" we go along happily in this surprisingly secluded yet convenient spot. Many is the time I've heard a girl remark as she came in the green gate after an afternoon downtown, "It's always such a relief when you get in here; somehow it seems apart from the city. Funny isn't it?" "Funny" but true; for we do get the so-called real college life.

We have our light moments when we exhibit our natural dancing talents down the hall, lock our next door neighbor in her room and wait to see her stick her head out of the transom like a cuckoo coming out of his clock, or test our lungs with close harmony after dinner, and so on 'til the call comes down the hall—Quiet Hour! Then we settle down, alone or in favorable company, to do our French for tomorrow or to discuss the museum trip we took today.

Often the entire dormitory group gets together when social functions take place—perhaps it's entertaining the faculty or again a tea for our outside friends; maybe it's one of our supper dances or a Formal. On any occasion, it matters not what, there is an atmosphere of close relationship. We feel that we lead a broadening and full life here in working or in leisure time.

COMMITTEE

Helen Stevenson, Chairman

Grace Huntley	Lyda Paz	Muriel Schlesinger
Alice Morris	Virginia Rechnitzer	Helen Cahalane, Ex Officio

This year, Junior Prom was held in the very attractive Egyptian Room of the St. Regis Hotel. Midst multicolored lights, adroitly worked by the drummer, one of the best dressed crowds in the history of Barnard (we have that on good authority) danced to the music of Bert Lown and his Biltmore Orchestra. Mr. Lown was there in person for the greater part of the evening. He proved generally popular because he played everyone's requests and also neither he, nor any of his orchestra, offered "vocal refrains."

The favors gained general acclamation. While a novelty, still they were useful. Grey suede photo frames were the favors for the girls. Formal pocket letter files in black calfskin were favors for the men. A little explaining had to be done about the latter but the next time our escort reaches for the theater tickets, he won't pull out a veritable antique. It will all be in "our" pocket letter file.

We were honored in having Dean Gildersleeve present. She very kindly postponed her trip to Florida to attend Prom. The other guests of honor were Dr. and Mrs. Mullins, Miss Mabel F. Weeks, Miss Barbara Kruger and Miss Gena Tenney, President of the Undergraduate Association.

In the spring a Junior's fancy turns to thoughts of Junior Show; a show compiled by a committee which was at work all winter to have things in readiness for a burst of activity from its class.

With a cosmopolitanism befitting our city college, the plot of the show was based on a newspaper. In the form of a musical revue the idea was carried out with startling headlines, extras, advice to the lovelorn, and other familiar journalistic institutions and was enacted for the members of the college, their escorts, friends and parents.

No particular talent was demanded and any one in the class who felt so inclined was urged to trip the light fantastic, hit the chromatic, or interpret the dramatic.

Class History

The scene of this little story opens on a blistering day in September and is laid entirely in the City of New York, James J. Walker, Mayor. A troop of forlorn girls stood in Barnard Hall in the division that was later to be familiarly known to them as "Jake." We each had pinned on us a little white paper on which was written our name. It gave each and every one of us an eerie feeling somewhat akin to the feeling a prisoner might have on first receiving his number. Then we were taken to the portentous-looking dining room in Hewitt Hall (dorms, to you). Here during lunch, we frightened little creatures tried, usually unsuccessfully, to make polite conversation with our neighbors. Lunch over, we were herded to the gym where the Dean welcomed us and where we got our first inkling of Greek Games (we had all been under the impression that it was some sophisticated New York parlor amusement!).

Then came registration when we all faced the wrath of the powers that be because we consistently wrote in pencil when there were big letters on the top of the pages saying, "Use Ink." And we had several great clashes because some of the more knowing members of the class didn't want to take Hygiene because they already knew about life.

And after registration came classes and we still didn't know what it was all about.

The first big event was the class meeting. It was as quiet as a Quaker church meeting (note contrast with later meetings). After many such meetings, each getting a trifle noisier than the last, Jane Martin emerged victorious as the first class president of the ignoble Class of 1934. The Sophomores then gave Mysteries in the form of a baby party, which I might add was more appropriate than one can guess.

The first chance the class had to show how it could handle affairs if left to itself, was the Freshman Dance. Such an affair it was! The gym was a dazzling profusion of black and white which was a rather startling background for the various startling members of the class.

The class was rather quiet again until spring came and elections were held for the next year. The meetings were slightly reminiscent of a Holy Rollers meeting. This time Margaret Gristede became president; more power to her.

The next fall was spent by our noble class trying to appear worldly to the Freshmen and not let any upperclassmen catch us doing it. In our charming way we gave the Freshmen a Barn Dance for Mysteries. Then classes went on and nothing out of the ordinary happened until we had our Soph Hop. The gym was a bower of rosy hearts and was a proper setting for a great social success.

With Mid Year's finished, we had nothing to do but sail through the year and start plans for Junior Prom. It was a little in advance of the times, but it was something to look forward to. But still nearer in the future came final exams which had the power of making Juniors of us. We had more elections and Patty McGlinchy carried off the honors by being elected president. Then when work was through for the year, we did something really big. We had the Sophomore Luncheon. And my dear, it was simply marvelous! Sherry's, you know. The food was wonderful when you finally managed to translate the menu. And thus we parted for another summer.

The next fall saw us coming back again with more airs and graces than a dowager walking her dog on Park Avenue. We blandly talked of our affairs of the summer and thought with a slightly stifled yawn that the Freshmen were not a bad bunch but that we would probably get a dub for a sister. The list went up and we did nobly by our little sisters by telling them the great glories of college and trying to show them that if they weren't pretty careful they'd turn out to be like us. We had several Teas for them and were all worked up because they apparently didn't know the intricacies of Student Mail and never got our notes telling them that there was a Tea and that if they came they would probably find us there, but not to bank on it. We sailed through the fall, still in vague anticipation of the great Junior Prom that was to take place soon. Christmas passed as it is apt to do and then the great problem confronted us of which swain to bring to Prom. We didn't want to hurt any feelings, but we were all so overwhelmed with them that it was a dilemma. Well, finally the great night came and we were all a-twit (just on the inside, we hope it didn't show). It was another of those social functions at which our class seems so proficient. The St. Regis, no less, my dear. And we danced to the soulful strains of Bert Lown's orchestra. The supper was delicious and by that time most of us had passed our French Exit and so were able to read the menu with only a little difficulty.

And then the Prom was over and we had nothing to look forward to but exams, which seem to have a peculiar way of cropping up twice a year when you don't feel at all in the humor for them.

And now I can only guess what Senior year will be like. We will return to college in the fall, as is more or less the custom, and don our caps and gowns hoping that some of those Freshmen will notice us. For three preceding years we have looked forward to the day when no one will have to ask us what class we are in. We will assume an air of "Ho hum, it's almost over!" and start thinking about what we will do when we have finished. We will look at the Alumnae News to see what our predecessors have done, and think, "Not for me." Then the year will be over before we know it and we will be cast, flung, and hurled into a series of events which are commonly called Senior Week and wonder if anyone knows what it is all about. Then will come the great day when we will sit in the blazing sun on the Library steps and hear a lot of names that mean nothing to us. We will receive a piece of paper that is supposed to certify that we know something. We will take leave of each other with a wry smile and be gone to cast our lot with the multitudes of the earth, thinking as we do so, "I wish I were still in college."

GREEK GAMES

Greek Games

By Professor Charles Sears Baldwin

Greek Games offer to Barnard College an experience of mythology. Any one who thinks the opportunity trivial, tiresome, or even repellent, conceives mythology too narrowly. The outside world, indeed, thinks of it as certain ancient names and costumes from a dictionary, and has never seen it except in conventional pageantry or in the symbolical cartoons of the Sunday newspaper. To call a girl a nymph, or a general, Mars, or dawn, Aurora, shows no more art than the decoration of a wedding cake. Mythology as ornament has at best the value of allusion, and may flatter some families who have bought an encyclopedia; at worst it is a set of stilted conventions. But mythology is also a pervasive and apparently a permanent form of poetic creation. What makes that terrible tragedy, the "Medea" of Euripides, piercing is the re-creation of the myth that the middle age called the Fairy Mistress. So the "Prometheus" of Aeschylus is the re-creation of a myth; and so is the "Prometheus" of Shelley. As Shelley's "West Wind" is a myth without one word of ordinary mythology, so his "Prometheus" is mythological not in the use of such persons as Domogorgon, but in conception and composition in being itself a myth. William Vaughn Moody created the myth again for our day of anthropology in his "Fire-Bringer." To enter this experience in lyric and music, in ritual procession, and especially in choral dance, is a great privilege.

Greek Games Entrance

Maidens and youths in festive array offering devotion to gay Dionysus—purple-clad nymphs, statue-like in their worship—priestesses, stateliest of mortals, approaching the gods themselves in purity—music solemn and dramatic in its very simplicity—cries—songs—fervid prayers all mingle into fascinating harmony. Then sudden hush. The challenger steps forth and delivers his message in the pregnant silence—a little figure pushes forward and answers him. All hail—the games are on!

DANCE OF THE CLASS OF 1934

From the sanctuary of Hera, the priestess comes to lead a group of maidens in their worship. Dionysus, with a group of reveling followers, runs in and drags the maidens from the temple steps into a gay dance. The god turns to dance alone before the priestess, who stands aloof and will not join him. Soon he goes away. The maidens, called back to the temple, sway half rebelliously, until a new worshipper comes to rebuke their levity. Even the priestess is moved by the subtle call of this worshipper—until suddenly Dionysus throws aside his disguising prayer-robe to lead a new, wild dance. At last the priestess escapes from the rhythm-drunken maidens to reach the shining dagger on the altar, and falls, herself a sacrifice to Hera, before the undefiled sanctuary.

DANCE OF THE CLASS OF 1935

Ariadne has been deserted by her lover Theseus on the lonely isle of Naxos. Dejectedly she wanders about until she falls, miserable and exhausted. As she sleeps, music is heard in the distance. It grows louder, and then, dancing to its strains, enters a group of Bacchantes with their leader, Bacchus. In the midst of their gay dance the Bacchantes suddenly perceive the beautiful Ariadne who is peering curiously at the spirited, purple-clad group. Not wishing to be cast aside by their fickle leader, they whirl about him in an attempt to conceal the presence of the lovely maiden. Meanwhile, Ariadne advances hesitantly toward the group, through which Bacchus has petulantly broken. Realizing that they will lose favor by the unexpected appearance of this beautiful maid, the anxious revelers try to stay the impetuous youth, but in vain. Ariadne's beauty has captivated him and he immediately draws her into the dance. At first his followers are unresponsive, but soon they too are involuntarily attracted by her charm and accept the choice of their beloved leader. As the music grows more impassioned, the Bacchantes, intoxicated by its wild rhythm, join in the dance which ends in a frenzy of joy and abandon.

ODE TO DIONYSUS

Hail, Dionysus! Thou who hast weighted trees
Of many blue-skied lands with fruit,
Thou who hast set the red blood running fast
In vineyards, and hast brought good life
To every root.

Here, son of Semele, is heaped thine ivy green;
Here, gold-haired god, are twined thy vines.
Here have we gathered all the dew-washed leaves
With which your brow was wreathed once:
Accept our lines!

Here offer we the swaying vines that grow and fade
Throughout the dance, the ivy bright
That music twists round many eager hearts,
The berries red that grow in feats
Of youthful might.

Accept these games, great god, and waken in this age,
As thou didst waken once in Greece,
A sweet fertility of joy and song.
Hang thy rich, clustered laughter here
On vines of peace!

CLUBS

Newman Club

Mary McPike	President
Marguerite Dressner	Vice-President
Gerarda Green	Secretary
Gertrude Lally	Treasurer

Columbia University numbers among its organizations three Newman Clubs for the benefit of its Catholic students. The Graduate Club draws its members from Teachers College, the Columbia and Barnard Newman Clubs from their respective colleges.

The Newman Club of Barnard College is an organization whose major purposes, in the words of its advisor, Father Ford, are "the spiritual, intellectual, and social good of those who constitute its membership and participate in its diversified and interesting gatherings." Towards this end, on the second Thursday of each month, luncheons are held in Barnard, each of which a prominent speaker attends. In addition, Newman House holds informal coffee hour on the second Sunday evening of each month, to enable the members of the three clubs to meet one another. Father Ford, whose office is in Earl Hall, is always ready and willing to assist Catholic students either in spiritual or material affairs, and offers the hospitality of Newman House to them freely at any time.

Lutheran Club

Eleanor Overbeck	President
Edith Schulz	Vice-President
Doretta Thielker	Secretary
Dorothy Falcino	Treasurer
Olga Bendix	Publicity Chairman

This is the first year of the Lutheran Club's existence. Barnard Lutherans had hitherto been actively interested individually as members of the American Lutheran Student Association, but they felt that as an organized unit they could express themselves more clearly and forcibly. The specific aims of the club are to bring Lutherans together in closer friendship, for group spiritual activity, and so to enrich the entire college life.

The club gives several teas a year to outstanding Lutheran men and women, who speak about their work and with whom they later participate in discussion groups, thus combining social and intellectual activity with religious interests. The club does not intend to exist independently of the other Barnard religious groups and has given a tea jointly with the Episcopal Club; in addition, it has chosen Thursday as its Chapel Day as have the Episcopalians. The members have also undertaken some social work among the poor. An invitation to the college is always cordially extended.

Menorah

Mildred Pearson	President
Edythe Arbus	Vice-President
Evelyn Cohen	Secretary
Betty Goldstein	Treasurer
Freema Baloff	Publicity
Ruth Saberski	Recording Secretary

The Menorah Society of Barnard serves the special function of bringing to the Jewish students an opportunity to study the historical and contemporary phases of the culture of the Jewish people. The Jewish people is a vital minority in the world scene, and has contributed a definite point of view in the arts and sciences. Distinguished students and leaders of Jewish life have been invited to speak on their special fields of interest.

This year the practice has been introduced of having Rabbi Weinstein, Counselor of Jewish Students at Earl Hall, lead the discussions following each lecturer. These discussions have afforded the students a chance to present their own reactions to the speaker as well as their attitudes on the subject discussed.

The Menorah is non-sectarian and cordially invites all students to its meetings.

International Club

Jean Giesey	President
Ella Sanders	Vice-President
Marianne von Stielberg	Secretary
Eleanore Grushlaw	Treasurer
Nathalie Drozdoff	Social Chairman
Isabel Lewis	Publicity Chairman

The International Club exists for the purpose of fostering greater understanding and friendship between foreign and American students. It is hoped that the contacts and intimacies formed through the meetings, teas, discussions and lectures given by the club will do much to acquaint the foreign students with American customs and will also bring about a more friendly American feeling toward the manners and modes of living of foreigners. Many of the teas are purely social in character and are given over to the presentation of the national songs and dances of some country that is well represented in the membership of the club. Other meetings are devoted to talks by a noted speaker on international relations or cultural developments in a particular country.

Wigs and Cues

Gertrude Rubsamen	President	Betty Grant	Chairman of Costuming
Polly Tarbox	Vice-President	Ruth Sherburne	Chairman of Staging
Dorothy Sachs	Business Manager	Mary Louise Wright	Chairman of Try-Outs
Sally Dermody	Chairman of Publicity	Jane Eisler	Social Chairman
	Patricia Purvis — Play-Reader

Wigs and Cues, the dramatic organization of Barnard College, has for its aims and purpose, the promotion of a high standard of college dramatics in choice of plays, acting, producing and dramatic experiment; it desires to give those interested in the drama an opportunity of gaining knowledge and experience in the dramatic arts.

Students are elected to membership on the basis of dramatic ability shown in try-out plays given under the auspices of Wigs and Cues, or in any other dramatic activities presented to the college at large.

This year, Wigs and Cues presented as its fall production "Black Ey'd Susan" by Jerrald. The play, a forerunner of "Pinafore," was first produced in 1829. The plot concerns soldiers and pirates, a sweet and helpless heroine, a heartless landlord, and all features true to the tradition of nineteenth century comedies. Several rollicking songs and gay dances were among the most amusing features of the production.

"Bon jour, madame, Charmée de faire votre connaissance." The scene is Hewitt Hall, the group the Société Française of Barnard where students interested in French gather once a week to settle the affairs of the world—in French. Since the discussions have no restrictions of subject or ardor, even timid souls grow fluently French over their pet theories of art, politics, or new coiffeurs.

When a distinguished Frenchman visits Barnard, it is often the pleasure of the Société Française to entertain him at tea. Then we mean to be very much on our dignity, but our Sedate Events usually develop into gay afternoons.

The Société Française has a certain illusive attraction for us all. That is why we pause in the midst of busy practical days to drop in for lunch or tea with the Société Française. And being materialists too, we appreciate the practice in French conversation; it's about the most painless process yet invented for acquiring the nonchalant fluency they talk about in the language school ads!

Spanish Club

Petra Muñoz	President
Laura Smith	Vice-President and Treasurer
Emma Rodkiewicz	Secretary
Gladys Becica	Publicity Chairman

El Circulo Hispano brings together those interested in the language, peoples, and culture of Spain and Hispanic countries through a series of teas, lectures, dramatics, and other entertainments. This year the club has been generously accorded the facilities of a room in the Casa de las Espanas. There the students may meet to chat or read, have tea, or entertain. The club very successfully presented scenes from "Don Juan Tenorio" of Zorrilla, in November, under the direction of Mrs. Amelia del Rio. Later, with the French and Italian Clubs, the Spanish Club presented a Christmas Festival. The club gave as its part in the entertainment the "Egloga a la Natividad" of Juan de la Encina, a XV Century play. In the spring term, there was a gala Carnival Dance held by the club. Another play was given in the spring and the exhibition of Spanish paintings completed the year's work and entertainment.

The Spanish Club collects funds for its scholarship prize, affording a year's study in the Central University, Madrid. This scholarship is awarded every year to an outstanding student of Spanish.

The Deutscher Kreis aims to encourage the interest of Barnard students in the German language, literature, art, and customs. Since 1925 it has shared in the benefit of a fund given to Barnard College by the late Mr. Edward D. Adams, to be used, at the discretion of the German Department, "for the purpose of bringing German life and civilization closer to the appreciation of American students, and of furthering mutual understanding and good will between the youth of both countries." Regular meetings are held twice a month, always with music, and often with the discussion of some interesting German topic of the day. The season of 1932-33 was inaugurated with a membership of over one hundred and a complimentary "Kino Party" at the Criterion Theatre to see "Maedchen in Uniform." In December, Hasenclever's successful comedy, "Ein Besserer Herr," was given in Brinckerhoff Theatre. One of the traditions of Barnard College is the Kreis Christmas Party, at which the lighted Christmas tree and German carols and confections help to create the atmosphere of a German Christmas celebration.

Italian Club

Anne Sardi	President
Maria Cottone	Vice-President and Treasurer
Helen Robinson	Secretary
Madeleine Davies	Publicity Manager
Eleanor Crapullo	Social Chairman

The aim of the Italian Club is to bring together those interested in Italian life and culture. The program for the year opened with a tea in honor of the Italian faculty at which many distinguished guests were present. The next event was a tea at the Casa Italiana, the center of Italian activities at the university, where Professor Lowell Beveridge gave an illustrated lecture on Italian Renaissance music. Another activity of the club was participation in the Christmas festival of the Romance Language Clubs. The Annunciation scene from an early medieval play, accompanied by music of the XVI Century, was presented. The arrangement of the tableau was based on Melozza da Fodi's "Annunciazione."

Glee Club

Margaret Dalglish	President
Margaret Altschul	Business Manager
Jean Decker	Secretary
Marguerite Dressner	Librarian

The Barnard Glee Club is composed of fifty members and is led by Professor Lowell P. Beveridge. It has had a most successful year. The first concert was given in conjunction with the Chapel Choir and the Columbia Glee Club. At this first event, a Haydn Mass was sung. The audience was extremely large and received the program with enthusiasm.

On November 17, the annual Glee Club Tea was given in the College Parlor. An all Brahms program was given, with a large selection of Liebesliede. On December 3, the second annual Concert was held at the Hotel Plaza, followed by a dance.

The Glee Club sang for the Barnard College Club at the Barbizon Plaza on December 11 and the annual Christmas Assembly "Sing" followed shortly after that.

In the future, the Glee Club, through its widening circle of friends, expects to give more and more outside concerts. A big step has been taken under the tutelage of Professor Beveridge. The Glee Club is assuming an importance in college affairs which it has never had before.

Dr. Jane Perry Clark — Faculty Advisor

Social Science Forum is an organization for students interested in national and international problems of political, economic, and sociological import. It sponsors speakers of authority on these questions but allows for active student participation in discussions. Sometimes individuals present reports and answer questions raised by their fellow club members. Informal luncheon discussions have been a new and popular feature of the Forum's activities this year.

Social Science Forum is affiliated with the International Clubs of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. It has a shelf of its own in the Barnard Library where students may delve for information on international problems. It is hoped that through individual research and active participation in the informal discussions, as well as by hearing experienced speakers, students will develop a well-informed attitude toward questions of current interest with a view to becoming good citizens.

Classical Club

Florence Pearl . . . . . President Catherine Strateman . . . . . Secretary

Mabel Holmes . . . . . Treasurer

The Classical Club has the distinction of being the oldest club at Barnard College. It is proud to include in its membership not only undergraduates but also many alumnae and members of the faculty. The aim of the club is to offer to those interested in ancient Greece and Rome an opportunity to broaden their knowledge of the life, literature and art of those civilizations. Throughout the year, the club welcomes as its guests and speakers men and women distinguished in the field of classical antiquity.

Music Club

Helen Feeney . . . . . President Edith Guldi . . . . . Secretary

Helen Hershfield . . Business Manager

The Music Club was formed this fall to foster and promote music and musical interest at Barnard. It has as its sponsor Professor Douglas T. Moore, under whose able assistance it expects to honor as its guests eminent musicians, composers and critics. Thus far, it has had several interesting teas of its own besides participating in other campus activities.

By a concentration of our musical interest in this new club, our young talent will be enabled to collect in groups for musical discussion and performance. Judging from the number of artists already discovered, the Barnard Music Club will be of marked value to the college as a whole.

Debating Club

Angeline Bouchard . . . . President Eleanor Schmitt . . . . Secretary

Blanche Goldman . . . Vice-President Helen Schneider . . . . Treasurer

Sophia B. Murphy . . Publicity Manager

The present Debating Club is a new venture in Barnard, begun in the fall of 1932 under the leadership of Mary Murphy. Prominent members of the Barnard faculty became interested in the project and were made advisors to the club.

The purpose is to form a debating team so that Barnard may participate in intercollegiate debates. For the time being, they are confining themselves to debates among the members and to "heckling," hoping to receive enough training in this way so as to be competent to represent Barnard by next year. A number of interesting challenges have been received, which provide any necessary additional incentive to serious work.

Any students interested in debating are invited to join and help make a success of a commendable undertaking.

CONFERENCES

The Dean's Committee of Twenty-Five

AGNES CREAGH . . . . . Chairman
KATHERINE REEVE Representative from Student Council

An attempt by Dean Gildersleeve to rouse Barnard from the general apathy enveloping the American college has resulted in the formation of the Committee of Twenty-five. While its specific duties are, because of its youth, as yet partially undetermined, the committee's general function is to make the Barnard student aware during her college career of the problems which are to be solved outside college and the share she may take in their solution upon graduation.

The committee will try to stimulate participation not only in the special activities that Undergraduate Organization supports, but in the routine activities as well. Political clubs, assemblies, and college elections will all receive stress. Contacts which any of these make with the responsibilities intelligent women should take upon themselves after college will make the experience doubly valuable.

The members of the Committee of Twenty-five were chosen by Student Council on the basis of character, leadership, and ability. The students selected were those who heretofore had not taken part to any great extent in extra-curricular activities. Since the membership of the Committee is thus drawn from a fresh source and has representatives in every class, the activities of the body may be extended throughout the entire student body.

The Committee of Twenty-five has met with Dean Gildersleeve to consider those projects it is to undertake. So far it has sponsored the Penny-a-Meal drive which took place immediately before and after the Christmas holidays, the drive for toys and clothes occurring at the same time, and has encouraged assembly attendance.

College Assemblies

HILDEGARDE FITZGERALD Chairman

Under the guidance of Professor Wilhelm Braun the Assembly Committee planned programmes of interest to all the diverse groups in college.

One of the most impressive assemblies, while not occurring this year, is nevertheless deserving of mention in MORTARBOARD. During the Goethe celebration a programme of Goethe lieder, sung by Madame Schumann-Heink and broadcasted from coast to coast, was given at Macmillan Theatre under the sponsorship of Barnard College.

At the beginning of this year it was planned, at the request of the student body, to hold four required assemblies a year. The first of these took place October 18. At this opening assembly Dean Gildersleeve was speaker, asking that each student would do the most in her power to aid Barnard during the present world crisis. The Tuesday before election was devoted to a political symposium at which the platforms and views of the Republican, Democratic and Socialist parties were explained. Miss Anne Hodgkins of N. A. A. F. addressed the college at the first assembly conducted by A. A. With four student speakers she showed the part A. A. might play in the lives of students in and after college. At the second required assembly, on November 29, the college had the delightful experience of hearing Professor Harry Morgan Ayers. The following day Thanksgiving service in the chapel was held with Barnard invited.

Two assemblies were held between Thanksgiving and Christmas, one memorable because of the unusual experience it offered, the other because of the richness of its tradition. The Grand Duchess Marie of Russia was the guest of Barnard, December 15. The fame of her charming personality drew forth a large and keenly sympathetic audience. Christmas assembly, where, in accordance with custom, sprigs of holly were given out, saw much of the student body present to hear the musical programme prepared by the Glee Club under the direction of Professor Lowell Beveridge and to join in carol singing.

The new semester was opened by President Butler who spoke of the development in the idea of the American University. Dean Barker of the School of Engineering and Professor Shotwell summarizing the work done at Geneva and the course of development of international relations brought messages of importance to Barnard.

That the work of the Assembly Committee and Professor Braun is appreciated by the college is evidenced by the gratifying increase in assembly attendance.

College Teas

*Lyda Paz . . . . . Chairman

Margaret Goble . . . . . Chairman

College teas are to provide a time for students to meet each other in a social hour and to meet specialized groups both in and outside of college. For the purpose every Wednesday afternoon is set apart for tea. An innovation this year was the claiming by the alumnae of the first Wednesday of every month to entertain at teas to which the college at large was invited.

November 2 was the date of the Alumnae Tea for Freshmen at which Barnard daughters of Barnard Alumnae were guests of honor. A series of three teas at which famous actors and actresses, writers, and musicians were present was held during January, February, and March. The April Alumnae Tea was given in honor of the Seniors.

Barnard Clubs were hostesses at several Teas. On November 16 the Glee Club presented a programme of vocal and instrumental music, and during the week preceding Christmas holidays the Romance Language Clubs presented a programme of Christmas plays. This was followed a few days later by the annual Deutscher Kreis Christmas Party. During the spring term the French Club presented an afternoon of French music and the Deutscher Kreis was again hostess to the college.

Two Vocational Teas, on December 7 and March 15, provided an opportunity for the student body to meet Barnard women now in professional or business work. The Barnard Summer School for Women Workers in Industry, one of the less popularly known of Barnard activities, held a Tea on November 9 at which members of the staff and student body of the school were present and handicraft work done by industrial workers was exhibited and sold.

The greatest development made during the year in the institution of college teas was probably the closer co-operation between alumnae and undergraduates.

Freshman Day

HELEN CAHALANE . . . . . Chairman

Freshman Day, the first social event of the college year, serves a threefold purpose. It makes the incoming class for the first time conscious of its own unity; it provides an opportunity for the introduction of members of the administration; it enables the heads of some of the extra-curricular activities of major importance to the college to give the Freshman Class a conception of the meaning and working of these organizations.

On September 18, the Class of 1936 was welcomed to Barnard by Dean Gildersleeve. Assistant Dean Gregory, Miss Weeks, and Dr. Alsop, each of whom interpreted the students' relationship to her own administrative branch, also addressed the class.

Following luncheon, the first class meeting was called to order by Gena Tenney, undergraduate president. Ruth Anderson, Honor Board chairman, explained the meaning of the revised Honor Code and Aileen Pelletier, president of the Athletic Association, spoke of the plans and purposes of A. A. Dorothy Crook, '33, Kathleen McGlinchy, '34, and Roselle Riggin, '35, class presidents, welcomed 1936 in the name of their respective classes, after which the class joined in college songs led by Beatrice Scheer. The meeting adjourned to the gymnasium, where, according to custom, a part of last year's Greek Games were presented. A short explanation of the games by last year's dance chairman introduced the activities.

An informal tea on the terrace brought a pleasant end to the activities of Freshman Day.

A committee chosen from '33, '34, and '35 aided the chairman in planning the day's events.

For the past several years it has been the custom during the winter semester to conduct a drive for the purpose of supporting two International Scholarships of one thousand dollars each.

Every spring a committee consisting of faculty representatives and the undergraduate president put forth a list of candidates from the Senior Class, one of whom, elected by popular vote, receives one of the scholarships. It is then her privilege to attend any foreign university she wishes, to do graduate work in her own particular field.

The second scholarship is awarded to a foreign student of promise to spend a year at Barnard.

It has been the purpose of these scholarships to help create a feeling of co-operation and unity between students of all countries. For this reason Student Fellowship is one of the most important activities undertaken by Undergraduate Organization.

Frances Smith, '32, studying at the London School of Economics, is the present Barnard Fellow. Ella Sanders of Holland is the Foreign Student.

Junior Month

Jean Waterman . . Barnard Representative

Every July one Junior from each of twelve eastern women's colleges, Smith, Vassar, Elmira, Swarthmore, Wells, Connecticut College for Women, Wellesley, Bryn Mawr, Goucher, Radcliffe and Barnard, come together to live for one month at the Women's University Club and, under the supervision of Miss Clare M. Tousley, assistant director of the Charity Organization Society, to learn how social service work is carried on in a large city.

Two days of every week during Junior Month are devoted to lectures by such well-known authorities as Henrietta Addison, Director of the Crime Prevention Bureau, and Miss Ruth Collins, Superintendent of the House of Detention for Women. The lectures were followed by field trips in which the theories outlined in the lectures were seen in practice. Three days a week were spent in field work in which each Junior saw for herself actual family problems, desertion, unemployment, juvenile delinquency. Here she was allowed to suggest and sometimes apply remedies. At the same time the point was stressed that it was her own interpretation of social problems that was important, for it was that which she would carry back to college.

Any Junior may apply for Junior Month, the only qualification being that she can bring back clearly and forcibly to her college what she has experienced.

N. S. F. A.

The National Students' Federation of America is one of the most important of the organizations formed to give students from many localities opportunity to exchange opinions on problems peculiarly collegiate in nature as well as on those of importance to the world at large. Campus matters of every description come up for discussion, and collegiate stands on questions of national and international importance such as war debts and tariffs, are fertile ground for debate.

The approach in every instance is a collegiate one, designed to aid college students in the questions they are called upon to solve. The great value of N. S. F. A. lies in the tolerance and broadmindedness induced by ample discussion.

Until this year N. S. F. A. has held only one all-inclusive National Conference. It was decided however at the last meeting to hold auxiliary sectional meetings. It is planned to send a regular Barnard delegate to the sectional conference.

It was deemed impossible to send a representative to the N. S. F. A. conference this year.

I. S. S.

In International Students' Service an attempt is made to have students the world over become consciously aware of the bonds of unity between them. The movement is primarily European and, because of its broader scope abroad, the vast number of its conferences are held in Europe. For this reason it is impossible for Barnard to send delegates.

The conferences of I. S. S. treat with world problems of every sort. The conference's action in considering these questions is not confined by a purely collegiate approach, and problems exclusively collegiate in import are of minor importance.

Men and women of wide experience and great ability of critical analysis lead in the clarifying argument which takes place.

While it is regrettable that it is impossible to attend every meeting of I. S. S., the broadening experience of International Conference makes it important that Barnard should whenever possible maintain connection with the organization.

Silver Bay

Kathleen McGlinchy, '34 Chairman of Delegation

Mrs. Mary M. Seals Faculty Member

The group of Barnard girls who attended Silver Bay Students' Conference at Lake George last June shared a wonderful but almost indescribable experience. Silver Bay is a conference devoted to discussion of problems of every sort. Under the guidance of experienced and inspiring leaders, representatives from the Eastern women's colleges met and discussed political and economic, national and international questions, social, racial and religious problems.

Not only were the hours spent in enlightening discussion pleasurable, but the setting of the "summer campus" was in itself inspiring. The waters of Lake George gave ample opportunity for swimming and boating, and in the evening the boathouse was the favorite meeting place of groups of girls who came there after chapel to talk over the day's activities, sing college songs, or just look at the masses of brilliant stars in the deep sky. Hikes in the hills and mountains about the lake, tennis and dramatic sketches, gave much in addition to the chance for absorbing argument.

Silver Bay gives one who goes a new and broader outlook gained through meeting many points of view. It gives each representative a feeling of being one of a great college group, eager to apply itself to world problems; and it makes each group from each college conscious of its separate entity in its common purpose to bring back to fellow students what it has received.

Every girl at Barnard College is a member of the A. A., and it is to please this widely differing group that the many activities sponsored by the A. A. are arranged. The nucleus of this college-wide organization is the Executive Board, which meets regularly to discuss college needs and to plan such popular events as Play Day, the A. A. Assembly, the Posture Contest—to say nothing of the numerous tournaments and informal meets. There is co-operation with the Department of Physical Education to make a reality of the slogan—"A game for every girl and a girl in every game."

A year-around program emphasizes student health, while week-ends at Barnard Camp bring the A. A. members close to nature and the great outdoors. Interest and participation in the affairs of the A. A. are enabling Barnard students to evaluate correctly, and to enjoy heartily, healthful recreation.

Basketball, one of the major sports at Barnard, starts in October and extends throughout the entire fall semester. Competition consists of interclass and odd-even games, which require enough energy of mind and body to sustain one's enthusiasm. The culmination of the basketball season is the All-Star-Alumnae Game in which the best players of the college compete with those of the alumnae. This game attracts widespread interest among the student body and the faculty.

The 1932-33 officers of the Athletic Association were welcomed into their positions by the retiring Executive Board and the Department of Physical Education at an Installation Ceremony held last May in 304 Barnard. Helen Appell, retiring president, administered the oath of office to her successor, Aileen Pelletier, from whom the new board then received their oath.

Miss Wayman presented the Distinguished Service Medal to Helen Appell, following which Miss Finan announced the swimming awards. Helen Appell and Aileen Pelletier presented the All-Star Letters and Class Numerals.

Harvest Hop

The third Annual Dance of the Athletic Association was held on November 18, 1932, in the gymnasium in Barnard Hall. It was attended by about a hundred-fifty couples. Dean Gildersleeve, Miss Wayman, Miss Weeks, Miss Kruger, and the members of the Physical Education Department were the guests.

In keeping with the time of year and the title of the dance, the gymnasium was decorated in brown, orange, and corn-colored crepe paper, with stacks of corn stalks and piles of gay squashes here and there. The programs were in russet and corn color.

In true autumn style, the refreshments consisted of cider and doughnuts, served from a table decorated with crepe paper covered with harvest scenes. Betty Armstrong, chairman of the committee, was ably assisted by her committee members, Alida Fortier and Jean Waterman.

A. A. Assembly

A College Assembly under the auspices of the Athletic Association was held on November 15, 1932. Dean Gildersleeve presented the need of the college to participate in community activities and told of the relief work with which they might assist. Five students, chairman of committees on dancing, sports, camp and health presented the assembly with concrete suggestions regarding their activities. Aileen Pelletier, president of A. A., told of the principles governing the organization and why the program was on the intramural basis. Anne Hodgkins of the N. A. A. F. presented some of the conditions throughout the nation which girls can help to improve and urged continual effort in bringing to all girls the opportunity for full, free, unhampered development through a sane program of health and sports.

Barnard Camp

Barnard Camp—what pleasant memories are recalled and what delightful anticipations are aroused when we think of that little cabin surrounded by quiet hills and winding paths! There remains an unforgettable picture of autumn, of walking through dewy leaves—the blue water of the lake framed by clumps of russet, golden and brown trees. When winter casts its spell, transforming the landscape, there is skating on the same lake, and skiing or coasting down the snow-covered hills—and always a return to the glowing fire.

The year 1933 is a significant one in camp history. The Spring Barbecue will be a farewell in the true sense of the word. For we will not return to our present camp outside of Ossining, but to a new one of our own. In spite of the excitement of the new, fond memories will always surround the old. Class week-ends, open or private week-ends—they form some of our happiest college days. And though we stamp out the dying embers in the fireplace, the warm glow of our camp week-ends will be with us always.

Scene 1—The Palace Garden

Scene 2—New York Laundry

As the Seniors had chosen Chinese favors and decorations, we decided that we would put on a skit in the Chinese manner. So Pat Purvis, as Master of Ceremonies and musician, informed the audience that a Chinese drama was to be put on, and then she placed and explained the scenery—Ray Gierhart as a supple willow tree, Sue Lockwood as a Chinese bridge, and Helen Flanagan as a palace. Then the drama began.

The studious but henpecked Emperor and his domineering wife entered over the bridge, which obligingly flattened out for the process, to the shuffling provided by the musician, and we learned of the knowledge of the Emperor and the feelings of the Empress who was piqued because the prince did not return her love. She called the soldiers and ordered them to prepare to execute the prince. The three properties, upset over this turn of affairs, urged the musician to beat the gong, and the Emperor and Empress dashed off to dinner, and the tree, the bridge, and the palace planned to foil her. When the prince and his faithful dog came home from war, the properties warned them, and the dog went to ask advice of the "Doty-Dote," who sent back advising them to go to New York and open a laundry.

The second act found the prince and princess in a laundry, but she had become Americanized, while the poor prince was still faithful to his pigtail. The Emperor and Empress followed them to New York to imprison the prince, but American laundry methods had washed out the Great Seal, so they could not seal his death warrant. The Empress, who fancied managing a laundry, traded with the prince, and he and the princess left for China to rule it, while the Emperor and Empress stayed in New York, one to study and the other to enter big business.

The Scenic Artist Takes No Curtain Calls

Back of the "big drop" in every theater is the man who provides the proper stage settings. His work and that of his staff is essential to the success of every play.

The task of your annual designer may be likened to that of the scenic artist. He furnishes the background on which are portrayed the achievements of the Class of 1934. He accentuates the literary brilliance of the MORTARBOARD Staff through appropriate art, harmonious design, and tasteful typography. His work perpetuates the spirit of the Class of 1934.

Baker, Jones, Hausauer count it a privilege to have acted as "Scenic Artists" for the 1934 MORTARBOARD. We crave no curtain calls. If we have furnished a background of unusual distinction for the outstanding performance of the Staff, we are well content.
